My Lord,

The Japanese Minister, Yanigawara Sakimitzu, — arrived in Peking on the 30th July. On the 4th Instant he called on me. — The visit was only a visit of ceremony, but it was of some length and I took occasion to ask for the latest latest news of the Formosan affair, which I said of course interested us all more or less; adding that the Tsung li Yamên had sent me all the correspondence that had passed between the Chinese and Japanese regarding it. The Minister Yanigawara seemed somewhat disturbed by my allusion to it. He said that he had received one —

despatch about it en route from Tientsin — This I have since — ascertained was a despatch in the sense of the circular addressed by the Yamên to the Legation on the 2nd Instant, translation of which forms Inclosure No 1 in my Despatch No   of this date. I did not press for more information as I saw how little disposed he was to give it, but changed the subject and Yanagawara subsequently went into the questions of residence here, the steps necessary to secure a Legation, expense of rent or purchase &c with enough of interest to justify the conclusion, unless he was acting a part, that he seriously contemplates the establishment of a Legation in permanence at Peking. This would be, in some sort augury of a desire for peace, so far as Japan is concerned. It must be remembered indeed that, as the Japanese choose to put it, there is no casus belli between China and Japan, — the contention of the latter being that she has invaded territory which China last year admitted to be beyond the reach of Chinese Authority. The new Minister's attitude otherwise has been in perfect consistency with the hypothesis that there is nothing to disturb peaceful relations.

The Prince of Kung has been for a few days on leave, - it is stated, because he was indisposed. His Highness was consequently not at the Yamen when Yanagawara paid his first visit on the 7th Instant, i.e. yesterday. He presented the duplicate of his letter of Credence, however, and asked for his Audience. He was told, I am given to understand, that as the Ministers of other Powers were entitled to an Audience so would he be.

The Ministers who received him then passed on to the question of Formosa but except a reiteration of the proposition that China by her own admission has, in effect, no jurisdiction over the territory lately occupied by Japanese

My Lord,

I have the honor to forward a number of the Chinese Recorder, a Missionary Periodical recently revived, and to request Your Lordship's attention to the article, page 66, entitled "Mongolia's two Neighbours, Russia and China".

If I am not mistaken as to the authorship, I can vouch for the fairmindedness of the writer. It hardly needs his pen, indeed, to establish the advantage at which Russia must
