1 Enclosure

Enclosing an extract of letter relating to the Death of Lt. Commander Mac-Kenzie. U.S. Navy

---

Extract of a letter from Formosa, written by Mr. Jno Roſs, dated June 17th 1867.

* * * * *

Mr. Horn, a carpenter, came on the coast with a lorcha, which was smashed all to pieces the other day, — the Chinese # stealing everything. It was Mr Horn's # intention to go and see after the crew of the Bark "Rover".

On the 12th inst two American men of war arrived here, the "Hartford" and "Wyoming". They left here the same evening for the place where the crew of the Bark "Rover" are # supposed to have been murdered; on the morning of the 13th, they landed two hundred men and followed the natives about eight miles into the interior, when they # all set down to rest having about twenty men struck down with sunstroke, the # sun being very hot at the time. While # sitting down two or three of the officers advanced a little. Then came a volley of rifles from the bush, killing Lieutenant Commander Mackenzie. Poor fellow he staggered back and cried: Doctor! Doctor! and fell to rise no more.

The Admiral seeing there was no chance of doing anything, the natives being # concealed in the Bush resolved that they should return to their Ships. They arrived off Tactao on the 14th and the funeral took place at five o.c. that afternoon. I attended, and a solemn sight it was to behold, upwards of three hundred people were there, the drum playing the "Dead-march" to the grave. I was standing close to the Admiral when they were filling the grave, and the old gentleman had to stand aside being so much affected at the loss of one who was so much beloved and respected by all who knew him. They sailed the same evening for Shanghai. The # admiral is determined to return # again with re-inforcements at some future periode. Signed Jno. Ross.
