Nationalist reactions to agreed Anglo-American formula for signature of Japanese peace treaty have been most unfavourable. Main objections are proposal that bilateral Sino - Japanese treaty shall follow multi-lateral treaty and that Japan may choose whether she concludes treaty with the Communists or the Nationalists.

This is particularly galling since they claim that they suffered the heaviest losses during the war and as one of the victorious allies have indisputable rights to dictate peace terms ot the beaten enemy. In the press release the President has stated that Nationalist China will not accept discriminatory treaty (text follows by bag).

I understand the result of London talks was communicated to Taipeh by Wellington Koo on 18th June.
