OUTFILE

(FJ 10310/1)

2nd January, 1952.

In Eden's absence I write to thank you for your letter of the 19th December about reports that Mr. Dulles had been pressing the Japanese Government to recognise the Chinese Nationalist authorities in Formosa and to proceed with rearmament.

Japan's relations with China cannot avoid being the subject of speculation, since they will not be defined until after the Peace Treaty comes into force; they are meanwhile the subject of discussions both in Washington and Tokyo. His Majesty's Government's view that Japan must be allowed to decide her future policy toward China after the Peace Treaty takes effect is well known to the United States authorities. Indeed, this view has recently once again been brought to their attention.
