EMERGENCY

Addressed to Foreign Office telegram No. 71 of 16th January
Repeated for information to Washington Singapore Hong Kong.

My immediately preceding telegram.

Following is text.

[Begins].

While the Japanese Peace Treaty and the United States-Japan Security Treaty were being debated in the House of Representatives and the House of Councillors of the Diet, a number of questions were put and statements made relative to Japan's future policy towards China. Some of the statements, separated from their context and background, gave rise to misapprehensions which I should like to clear up. The Japanese Government desires ultimately to have a full measure of political peace and commercial intercourse with China which is Japan's close neighbour.

At the present time it is, we hope, possible to develop that kind of relationship with the National Government of the Republic of China which has the seat, voice and vote of China in the United Nations which exercises actual governmental authority over certain territory and which maintains diplomatic relations with most of the members of the United Nations. To that end my Government on November 17th 1951, established a Japanese Government Overseas Agency in Formosa with the consent of the National Government of China. This is the highest form of relationship with other countries which is now permitted to Japan pending the coming into force of the multilateral treaty of peace.

Tokyo telegram No. 71 to Foreign Office

The ~~Japanese~~ Government Overseas Agency in Formosa is important in its personnel, reflecting the importance which my Government attaches to relations with the National Government of the Republic of China. My Government is prepared as soon as legally possible to conclude with the National Government of China if that Government so desires, a treaty which will re-establish normal relations between the two Governments in conformity with the principles set out in the multilateral Treaty of Peace.

The terms of such bilateral treaty shall in respect of the Republic of China be applicable to all territories which are now or which may hereafter be under the control of the National Government of the Republic of China. We will promptly explore this subject with the National Government of China, as regards the Chinese Communist Régime, that Régime stands actually condemned by the United Nations of being an aggressor and in consequence the United Nations have recommended certain measures against that Régime in which Japan is now concurring and expects to continue to concur when the multilateral Treaty of Peace comes into force pursuant to the provisions of Article 5(A) (III) whereby Japan has undertaken to give the United Nations every assistance in any action it takes in accordance with the Charter and to refrain from giving assistance to any state against which the United Nations may take preventive or enforcement action.

Furthermore the Sino-Soviet Treaty of friendship alliance and mutual assistance concluded in Moscow in 1950 is virtually a military alliance aimed against Japan. In fact there are many reasons to believe that the Communist Régime in China is backing the Japan Communist Party in its programme of seeking violently to overthrow the constitutional system and the present Government of Japan.

In view of these considerations I can assure you that the Japanese Government has no intention to conclude a bilateral

/ treaty
