Japan - Nationalist China Treaty Negotiations

On 8th March Japanese Ministry for Foreign Affairs released to the press text of Chinese draft "Treaty of Peace" handed to the Japanese delegate by George Yeh at the first formal session on 20th February. Text was published in summary form here on 9th March. It consists of 22 Articles which, at first scrutiny, seem patterned on the San Francisco document omitting Article 3 (trusteeship) and "final clauses" and with substitution of the term "Republic of China" for the "Allied Powers".

2. On 10th March Japanese press reported that Chinese Nationalists were incensed at unilateral Japanese release of the text, described as a "double-cross", and were in particular anxious to learn whether this took place with the Supreme Commander's approval.

3. Eiji Wajima, Chief of Asian Affairs Bureau of Japanese Ministry for Foreign Affairs, flew to Taipeh on 8th March allegedly with fresh instructions from his Government. It is also rumoured that Chief of Treaties Bureau Nishimura may follow him.
